

CM is for real, extends his lead even further

SR pulls down 14 victories in an impressive showing

Effective date: 2019-12-11

Lots of GOO on hand or not, CM continues to knock down key games and give his opponents headaches. Since week 10 CM has been on a tear and hasn't really looked back (Except to scoff at the lack of competition of late) as he now sits comfortably in the penthouse with his Christmas lights twinkling, spiked eggnog in hand, and no immediate threats lurking to disturb his holiday cheer. Safe to say he's looking to wrap this thing up early and have a championship under his tree come Christmas morning.

Not to be overshadowed by CM's championship pursuit, SR was our weekly wins leader in week 14 as he put on a pickem' masterpiece behind his 14-2 performance. Very nicely done cap'n! This has pushed SR up in the standings where he now sits primed and ready for a run at the commemorative pen and pencil set with MS, KS and SS all in the running as well. Who will take home the mantelpiece conversation starter? Only one can be so lucky...Also due for some weekly recognition, PM knocked down his loner pick as his DEN squad was able to shock a very solid HOU team and come out victorious. Nice bit of picking there PM!!

3 weeks left on the schedule and word is surfacing that CM has already started writing the first draft of his championship acceptance speech. With only LF to fend off at this moment, CM is sitting pretty to add a 3rd chip to his belt...BUT in the extensive and illustrious history of the PFVCC we know that anything can happen as we've witnessed things like the Miracle on Maryknoll take place (shout out to MM).. With the final chapters all but written, its time to risk it all.. Stay thirsty my friends! (Most interesting man in the world voice)

Still Pimpin',

LF
