

SR quiets the chatter; asserts dominance in week 4

All-time wins leader, SS reaches a new milestone

Effective date: 2021-10-06

Week 4 was a statement week for none other than SR, who continues to give headaches to his fellow PFVCC pickers. Going 13-3 on the week and gaining 3 full games on the next best performances, SR cool calm and collectedly put together another strong outing. Well played SR! Since week one SR has seen himself at the top spot on the leaderboards, and although its early confidence is beginning to build... DR, LF, MS, SS, DP and PM all battled for honorable mentions as they secured 10 wins on the week, doing what they could to keep the pace and build a little confidence of their own. But as we know, great weeks separate themselves from the good weeks, and that's what we are beginning to see at this early stage of the season. After a great week, SR leads...With everyone looking up and a ton of season still left to go, this is an early test of grit and will power.. Who's next to secure their great week(s) and make a power move? It could be you...

Loner picks were down this week as I only have 4 to report on (probably because NF forgot to make his picks)... We had one successful loner which belonged to DR who won with NYJ taking out TEN. DR also had one not-so-successful as his pick HOU got routed by BUF. We respect your grind sir! BS and PM lost their only attempts with NE losing to TB and OAK losing to LAC respectively. Nice try gents!

Finally, a well deserved congratulations is in order for SS, who continues to rewrite record books by notching his 6,000th win this past week. We salute you SS!

1 month in...I think everyones warmed up... Let's get to week 5

Your President,

LF
