

SS and MM share the spotlight with 13 wins

LF finishes with 12; holds a narrow lead that the top

Effective date: 2022-12-06

Week 13 was a generous one to most as there were plenty of wins to go around. Of the 7 double-digit victors, SS and MM were the two that took the most for themselves as they flirted with perfect performances for a majority of Sunday but ultimately ended the week with a 13-1 record to show for it. Spectacular showings from the two of them as they continue to apply pressure on the leader waiting for a slip up. Speaking of the leader, LF dug his heels in and went 12-2 as he fights to fend off the field while grasping to a two game lead with five to play. KS, DP and MS round out this weeks top honors with 11 winners to keep themselves trekking in the right direction. Well done to the lot of you mentioned above! One member that is feeling left out is NF who has lifted himself into relevancy this season. After a tough week going 9-5 he has dropped a few games and looks to rebound sooner rather than later. With 5 weeks to go and many still right in the thick of the hunt, we expect nothing but drama the rest of the way.

SR and DR, like the daring fighters that they are, came out swinging with four loners between the two. SR picked one and lost one behind his NE pick. DR had the other three- HOU, IND and NO all of whom didn't quite deliver the underdog effort that he was hoping for either. In a season that hasn't quite gone their way to this point, we still can appreciate a David and Goliath picking strategy even when the sling and the stone is just a little off the mark.

The final words have been written on week 13, what story will be written about week 14?

Your President,

LF
