

NF, BS and SS move a step closer behind strong week 9 showings

DP and LF stay put, rest of membership struggles to regain footing from all the GOO

Effective date: 2023-11-07

We are officially half way home and as we were heading into week 9, GOO was the topic of conversation reverberating throughout the PFVCC. There were plenty of games of opportunity to go around and with our leader, DP showing no less than 3 differences with every player it had all the makings of a league wide shake up. NF, BS and SS came out on the positive side of their differences which lead to 11-3 performances and a 1 game grab on the leaderboard. Great picking as the trio looks to stay around the hoop and chip away where they can. DP and LF battled out their 6 differences which lead to a 3-3 split and a 10-4 tally on the week to keep them standing pat. Unfortunately for the rest, no other member was able to capitalize on their GOO which have lead some to point fingers at a potential MIP hangover. With some hydration and rest heading into week 10, expect some get right performances! All things considered, no matter where you are in the standings we head into the ladder half of the season. With plenty of games and GOO to be had along the way we look forward to an exciting stretch drive!

MS and PM were our loner pickers here in week 9, and loners they remain as they weren't able to capitalize on their picks of CAR and NYJ respectively. Unfortunately for them both of their teams were outmatched but we know this won't deter you both! Better luck next time.

The sun sets on the first 9 weeks and gives way to a sunrise on week 10 and beyond. Pressure builds, but we are built for it! Best of luck PFVCC Faithful!

Your President,

LF
