

KS & SS Stay, MS Moves Out as Week 4 Hits Hard

Stay Afloat or Get Nipped was the Tale of of Two Tales

Effective date: 2025-09-30

Checking in on the penthouse, KS and SS were seen celebrating and making plans for the soon to be vacated master bedroom, while MS bitterly packed up his stuff. With one set of keys due back to the landlord, it's correct in saying that week 4 delivered our first major shakeup of the early season. It was one of those weeks where if you weren't first you were last, at least it felt that way. KS, SS, CM, NF and PM set the pace at 10 wins while the rest struggled to shift into gear. BS most notably stalled out in the first lap as his "risk it to get the biscuit" week ended in a fiery crash. Only notching 4 wins, he was heard singing "Free Falling" on his way back to the pit. MS, although a couple games better, felt just as crushed as he now must imagine what the penthouse decor will look like with KS and SS at the helm. Thoughts of frustration well up inside him, and in turn leaves us wondering if this is the last we've seen of him or if he will be able to climb to the mountain top once again. One member that may have something to say about it all is CM who sits one back and was just seen walking around the block of #1 Penthouse Drive. He's been here before.. He knows what it takes, so he stays steady, waiting for the opportune moment.

NF was our loner in week 4 but he stood alone in victory behind JAX valiant win over SF. Sharing top honors in wins to boot, he's feeling pretty good about himself. Well played sir!

Let's see if week 5 is more enjoyable for the lot!

Your President & Champ,

LF